NYPD'S Response to Policing Protest in 2020

67. On March 13, 2020, Louisville police entered the home of Breonna Taylor, a Black woman and her boyfriend. The Louisville police shot Breonna at least eight times and killed her. They also shot her boyfriend then attempted to criminally charge him for the entire encounter.
68. A few months later, on May 25, 2020, multiple civilians recorded Minneapolis police officer Derek Chauvin and three other officers kill George Floyd, a Black male accused of tendering a $20 counterfeit bill. Chauvin rested his knee, and his entire weight on George Floyd's neck for 9 minutes and 29 seconds until Chauvin choked Mr. Floyd to death.
69. The death of Breonna Taylor set off nationwide protest against police brutality and in support of police accountability in pursuit of racial justice. As tensions were high and daily protests continued, George Floyd was murdered. These murders set off powerful waves of protest across the world demanding police be held accountable and that the police killings of Black people stop.
70. Immediately after the murder of George Floyd, multiple protests were announced and advertised throughout New York City for months and New York residents participated in the said Protests, some of which, were held under the Black Lives Matter movement, which condemns systemic racism, anti-Black police violence, and use of excessive force against unarmed Black people.
71. In response to these racial justice and police accountability protest, the NYPD was permitted, encouraged and authorized to use violent, unconstitutional and unlawful measures to interfere, stop and prevent protest regarding police accountability.

72. Defendants knowingly and purposefully used types and levels of force that were excessive and unnecessary against Plaintiff and other peaceful protestors, despite such levels of force being in contravention of, or inconsistent with, NYPD policies and/or training.
73. Upon information and belief, the NYPD does not have training or policies regarding policing protests and First Amendment activity. Instead, the NYPD relied upon the Disorder Control Guidelines (“DCG”), which is a policy governing civil unrest, riots and disorder control.
74. The DCG relies upon militaristic tactics designed to demoralize, disperse and deter groups.
75. The NYPD uses excessive and unlawful force against protestors, including Plaintiff as a result of a policy, custom and practice aimed at inhibiting lawful protests and encouraging the use of excessive force, particularly protest in against police misconduct.
76. New York State Attorney General Letitia James held a 2-day hearing about the New York City Police Department’s Response to Demonstrations wherein she found police officers “using excessive force against protesters, including use of batons and indiscriminate use of pepper, brandishing firearms at protesters, and pushing vehicles or bikes into protesters.”¹
77. The Department of Investigation (“DOI”) also conducted its own investigation and issued a report in response to the NYPD’s response to the racial justice protest.²
78. DOI’s review of NYPD policies revealed that the NYPD did not have a policy specific to policing protests or First Amendment-protected expression. Rather, the NYPD Patrol Guide covers demonstrations in policies related to policing of “special events,” such as parades; “emergency incidents,” such as civil disorder; or “unusual disorder,” such as riots.³

79. The DOI also found that “the force required to carry out a mass arrest was disproportionate to the identified threat,” and “placed the burden of potential crime on a wide swath of people who had no apparent connection to that potential criminal activity.”⁴

80. Indeed, the NYPD has responded to protests by using unlawful force and false arrests as a matter of policy and practice and has done so on many occasions throughout the years as issues of police brutality rose to unconscionable levels.

81. Defendants knew that NYPD Officers would encounter protests against police brutality and in support of racial justice as multiple protests were announced and advertised throughout New York City for months.

82. Defendants knew that NYPD Officers would encounter protests in response to Police killings of unarmed Black people because they have encountered protest in the past including:

1. In 2014, in response to the killing of Michael Brown, an unarmed 18-year-old Black man who was shot by a Police Officer in Ferguson, Missouri⁵;
2. In 2014, Eric Garner was choked to death by an NYPD officer⁶;
3. In 2014, Akai Gurley was shot to death by an NYPD officer⁷:

4. 2015 in response to the killing of Freddie Gray an unarmed 25-year-old Black man who died after being injured while in custody of Baltimore Police⁸;
 5. 2016, Alton Sterling a 37-year-old Black man, was shot dead at close range by two Baton Rouge Police Department officers⁹;
 6. 2016, Philando Castille was shot to death by Minneapolis Police, while in the passenger seat of his car while his fiancé was in the driver's seat and his 4-year-old daughter was in the back seat¹⁰.
83. Defendants had notice, by way of media, social media, reports by the Civilian Complaint Review Board, Department of Investigation and others, that NYPD Officers engaged in unlawful behavior against protestors and protests in the past using excessive force, crowd disruption tactics and arrests lacking probable cause.
84. Defendants knew that without intervention or sufficient training, NYPD Officers would again continue to use the same tactics. Nevertheless, Defendants knowingly deployed thousands of insufficiently trained NYPD Officers to police the Protests.
85. There have been numerous documented incidents in the last several months where, as here, the NYPD responded to peaceful protests by using excessive/unlawful force and arresting peaceful protesters.¹¹

86. Defendants City and NYPD have been the subject of hundreds of federal and state lawsuits and complaints alleging violations of individuals constitutional rights as a result of and failure to train and the policy and/or practice of condoning violations of constitutional rights, including that of Plaintiff's, by its police officers against protestors including: (1) failure to ensure the need for individualized probable cause for each arrest; (2) failure to provide training regarding policing protests and First Amendment activities; (3) failure to provide meaningful dispersal orders and opportunities to disperse; and (4) failure to hold officers accountable for misconduct.
87. Plaintiff incorporates by reference the factual allegations in the following federal civil rights complaints in cases pending in the United States District Court for the Southern and Eastern Districts of New York pertaining to Defendants' responses to protest held throughout 2020:
- a. Payne et al v. DeBlasio et al., 20-cv-8924 (CM)(GWG);
 - b. Wood v. DeBlasio et al., 20-cv-10291 (CM)(GWG);
 - c. Sow et al v. City of New York et al., 20-cv-00533 (CM)(GWG);
 - d. Beach v. City of New York et al., 21-cv-06737 (ALC);
 - e. Zayer v. City of New York et al., 20-cv-06070 (ARR)(PK);
 - f. Rolon v. City of New York et al., 21-cv-02548 (CM)(GWG); and
 - g. Fraser v. City of New York et al., 20-cv-05741 (NGG)(MMH)
88. Defendants subjected Plaintiff and other peaceful protestors to Defendants' Protest Arrest Processing Policies, whereby Plaintiff was crammed in NYPD vans with many other protestors and NYPD police officers and transported to a precinct or central booking.
89. Defendants did not have individualized probable cause for each arrest or a basis for issuing a summons to Plaintiff.

90. Plaintiff was rounded up indiscriminately with dozens of other protestors, subject to longer processing times in custody and exposed to dangerous and unsanitary conditions of confinement with no regard to the risk and threat of COVID-19.

91. Due to the sheer number of peaceful protestors that needed to be processed, Plaintiff and other arrestees were subjected to significantly longer processing time in custody, which also exposed them to inappropriate and hazardous conditions of confinement due to COVID-19.

NYPD's Passive Response to Pro-Police and Other Demonstrations

92. On July 11, 2020 a "pro-NYPD rally in Dyker Heights devolved into physical attacks and racist, sexist language used against a group of counter-protesters."¹² Pro-Police protestors punched someone in the groin causing him to seek medical attention. Some pro-police marchers yelled that they hoped protestors would be raped, calling them a c, and made racist statements like saying Black lives were "garbage." A reporter was shoved by a blue lives matter protestor and her camera was destroyed and a police officer refused to take a police report. Blue Lives matter protestors threatened others with violence and physical assault. The NYPD made no arrests that day.¹³

93. On September 04, 2020, during a Black Lives Matter Protest in Times Square, pro-trump counter-protestors got into a vehicle and plowed through a crowd of Black Lives Matter marchers, hitting and injuring some of the marchers. The occupants of the vehicle were not arrested.¹⁴

94. On December 03, 2020, hundreds of people gathered in Staten Island in support of bar that was shut down because it refused to follow COVID-19 protocols. The Bar operated without a liquor license and served food and drinks in violations of the NYC's orders otherwise. The NYPD did not arrive to the protest in riot gear, did not kettle protestors and did not arrest or issue summonses to anyone during the protest.¹⁵

NYPD'S Failure to Train Regarding Policing Protests

95. Defendant City of New York has failed to train and has inadequately trained officers, including Defendant Officers on how to interact with protestors and police protests without engaging in constitutional violations.

96. According to the Department of Investigation ("DOI"), the NYPD does not have a policy specific to policing protests or First Amendment-protected expression.¹⁶

97. The NYPD relies on the Disorder Control Guidelines ("DCG"), which dictates protocol pertaining to large scale gatherings, civil unrest, disorder control and riots.

98. The DCG promotes military tactics designed to disperse, deter and demoralize large groups. Upon information and belief, the DCG contains no guidance regarding protest and First amendment activities.

99. The SRG are not trained to respond to peaceful protest or First Amendment activity nor is it their purpose. The deployment of SRG to protest and First Amendment activity resulted in the use of violent, aggressive, and excessive force which resulted in constitutional violations.

100. The DOI also found that the NYPD offered no comprehensive in-service training across the Department that related to policing protests at all and the NYPD lacked standardized, agencywide, in-service training related to policing protests.”¹⁷
101. In addition to failing to train NYPD officers, the Defendant City deployed the Strategic Response Group (“SRG”), a heavily militarized, rapid-response unit of several hundred officers tasked with dealing with public disorder events and terrorist acts.
102. The DOI also found that “outside of SRG, the NYPD deployed officers who largely lacked any recent training related to protests and that the NYPD appeared to have deployed a large number of front-line supervisors and officers to police the Floyd protests without adequate training.”¹⁸
103. The DOI further concluded that the new training provided was deficient because “that scenario-based training appears focused solely or primarily on crowd control tactics and formations with no discernable reference to managing interactions, facilitating First Amendment rights, and minimizing the use of force.”¹⁹
104. Upon information and belief, the NYPD relied upon the DCG and SRG to respond with hostility to protestors as mentioned above and in the documents throughout the reports mentioned herein and cases cited in reference.
105. Defendants’ failure to train includes: (1) failure to ensure the need for individualized probable cause for each arrest; (2) failure to provide training regarding policing protests and

First Amendment activities; (3) failure to provide meaningful dispersal orders and opportunities to disperse; and (4) failure to hold officers accountable for misconduct.

106. Defendant City's refusal to address the abuses of protestors by Police is the result of a policy, practice, custom, and procedure of the City that encouraged the use of excessive force, false arrest and imprisonment of protestors and to suppress First Amendment-protected activities by using these abusive, militaristic tactics, such as those used against Plaintiff.

107. The NYPD engaged in a pattern or practice whereby NYPD Officers kettled peaceful protesters, prevented them from leaving an area and stopped them from complying with dispersal orders. The practice involved the use of indiscriminate, excessive force; mass unlawful arrests of peaceful, non-resisting protesters; mass unlawful detention and arrests of protesters who were not given an opportunity to disperse from protest zones; and the overall quashing of peaceful protests.

108. Defendants, along with other policy-making officials, knew that the NYPD officers were woefully under-trained and were not ready to properly police the mass protests. Despite the foregoing, said Defendants and policy-making officials knowingly and purposefully deployed thousands of insufficiently trained officers to police the protests.

109. Defendants failed to discipline the vast majority of NYPD Officers who used excessive force against Plaintiff and other Protest attendees.

110. Out of thousands of complaints of excessive force and abuse of authority received by the CCRB, less than a third are fully investigated leaving the overwhelming majority of officers without accountability.²⁰

111. Furthermore, the DOI report found that between May 28 and June 20, 2020, the CCRB had received 1,646 protest-related allegations related to 248 incidents.²¹
112. Upon information and belief, Mayor de Blasio and Commissioner Shea received regular reports from Chief Monahan and other NYPD officials regarding the manner in which the City responded to the mass protests and confirmed the same during press conferences held throughout the years 2020 and 2021.
113. Upon information and belief, Mayor de Blasio, Commissioner Shea, and Chief Monahan regularly reviewed reports documenting patterns of police misconduct, their use of excessive force, unlawful seizures, and other First-Amendment violations, including media coverage regarding the violent suppression of peaceful protestors.
114. Despite being aware of the unlawful practices of the NYPD in policing the protests, named Defendants Mayor, Commissioner Shea, Chief Monahan and the NYPD leadership deliberately failed to correct and/or prevent NYPD Officers from using the aforementioned tactics.

NYPD'S Practice of Unlawful Arrest

115. Defendants effectuated, condoned and enforced a pattern or practice whereby NYPD Officers surrounded peaceful protestors, blocked them from leaving, and prevented them from complying with dispersal orders through the use of indiscriminate excessive force.
116. Defendants effectuated, condoned and enforced a pattern or practice whereby NYPD Officers engaged in the unlawful mass arrests of peaceful protestors, and unlawful mass detentions and arrests of protestors who were not given an opportunity to disperse.

²¹ Id at 26.

117. According to the DOI, NYPD's use of force on protesters—encirclement (commonly called “kettling”), mass arrests, baton and pepper spray use, and other tactics—reflected a failure to calibrate an appropriate balance between valid public safety or officer safety interests and the rights of protesters to assemble and express their views.²²
118. The NYPD did not have adequate policy or failed to train its members on policing protest and instead relied upon Disorder Control Guideline. The Disorder Control relies on the use of mass arrests... and other tactics to enforce crowd control.²³
119. The NYPD's use of mass arrest resulted in multiple arrest of protestors, including Plaintiff, without particularized and individualized probable cause pertaining to each arrest.
120. The NYPD purposefully and repeatedly used tactics, such as kettling, to effectuate the unlawful arrests, and intentionally created barriers and difficulties for the peaceful protestors that sought to comply with the NYPD's dispersal orders.
121. In numerous instances, all well documented by media, officers were seen flanking protestors, blocking their paths with bicycles, and vehicles, to prevent protestors from leaving.
122. In addition, there were many reports documented by media wherein an automated dispersal message was played moments before NYPD Officers began blocking off exits from protest locations in a purposeful attempt to trap the protestors with no meaningful opportunity for them to disperse.
123. In furtherance of the unlawful arrest of Plaintiff and other protestors, Defendant Police officers falsified criminal charges, summonses and arrest paperwork to justify the false arrests as the charges against Plaintiff were ultimately dismissed.
